FORT MASON CENTER

November 1984

C.E.T. SPONSORS SPECIAL SCREENING NOV. 29

On November 29, the Center for Educational Telecommunications and InSight Productions will present an informative and thought-provoking program. Two special productions will be shown, "Nisei Soldier: Standard Bearer for an Exiled People" and "Choice or Chance: Recruitment, Registration and the Draft." Interested parties such as veterans' groups, draft counselors, Asian-American organizations and the general public are invited to attend the screenings and the discussions which will follow.

"Nisei Soldier" has already attracted much attention. It was shown to Congress earlier this year in conjunction with pending interneeredress legislation. This documentary, originally shown on PBS, explores the experiences of the American soldiers of Japanese ancestry who fought valiantly in Europe during WWII, while their families were confined in internment camps.

"Nisei Soldier" was produced and directed by Bay Area filmmaker Loni Ding. Ms. Ding, winner of three Emmys and numerous other awards, has worked for KQED as producer-director for over 250 shows. She also teaches at UC Berkeley and recently received a Guggenheim Fellowship.

"Choice or Chance," InSight's slide show produced by July Erlich and George King, was sponsored by 12 different peace and justice groups—an unusual endorsement in itself!

The center for Educational Telecommunications (CET), one of Fort Mason Center's resident groups, is a nonprofit organization dedicated to increasing public access to telecommunications media. InSight Productions also provides slide, sound, video and media consultation in the public interest. This special evening of screenings and discussion is free and open to all. The event will be held at 7pm in Building C. For further information, call CET at 441-0322.

FMC UPDATE

Fort Mason Center has received a $15,000. gift from the McKesson Foundation. The funds will be used to renovate Pier 2 including the redesign of the electrical system which will help provide a more functional and comfortable facility for the many special events staged there.

On Wednesday, Sept. 26, the seating sculpture designed by Christopher Alexander and built by a group of artisan-masons working with Dr. Alexander, was dedicated. A reception aboard the Jeremiah O'Brien followed. "The Uncommon Bench" as it is often referred to, occupies a site near the ship, a stunning setting with a sweeping view of the San Francisco Bay. The concrete, two-tiered work features insets of marble depicting various themes of nature, and has a seating capacity for twenty people.

On Monday, November 26, the Guardsmen once again present their annual Christmas Tree Lot at Fort Mason Center's Pier 2. Proceeds from the sale will be used to send underprivileged children to summer camp.

The Guardsmen Christmas Tree Sale is the largest retail lot of its kind in Northern California. Thousands of beautiful trees, grown exclusively for the Guardsmen, are available, as well as wreaths, garlands and mistletoe. The Guardsmen offer flocking services; telephone orders and delivery can also be arranged.

The Guardsmen Tree Lot is open every day, November 23 through December 23, from 9:00am to 10:00 pm.

THIRD ANNUAL S.F. FALL ANTIQUES SHOW OPENS ON PIER 3

One of Fort Mason Center's most popular special events returns this month. The third annual San Francisco Fall Antiques Show opens on October 31 and runs through November 4. Fine furniture, rugs, silver, porcelain, prints and paintings are on display in Pier 3.

Of special interest this year is a loan exhibit of twenty-eight miniature rooms, hand-crafted by Eugene Kupjack. This extraordinary collection of scale reproductions of period rooms, some on loan from museums and private collections, is displayed for the first time in the Bay Area. In addition, Mr. Kupjack has generously donated one of his rooms, valued at over $20,000, to be raffled during the show.

The San Francisco Fall Antiques Show benefits Enterprise for High School Students, a non-profit job referral service. A complete restaurant facility is located on the pier during the event. The Show is open from 11:00 am to 8:00 pm daily. Admission is $8.00 and includes the catalogue.

HASSLE FREE HOLIDAY SHOPPING

This month, Fort Mason Center presents two lively alternatives to traditional holiday shopping. Fort Mason Center will present its Second Annual Resident Gift Show, which opens on November 21. And, Folk Art International's fifth annual Christmas Exhibition and Sale returns to the Fort Mason Conference Center, Building A, from November 17 through December 24, 1984, bringing the latest work of artisans from many different cultures to the Bay Area.

The Second Annual Fort Mason Center Resident Gift Show begins Wednesday, November 21 and runs through December 21. The lobby/gallery located in our offices in Building A will be transformed into a holiday gift display area. Visitors can see a representative selection of gift items available from our resident organizations. You can help your favorite nonprofit group, promote your favorite cause, and find a unique Christmas or Chanukah present—all at the same time.

The gift gallery will be open Monday through Saturday, from 9am to 5pm. For further information, call 441-5706.

A non-profit group, Folk Art International is dedicated to preserving the folk and tribal arts and crafts of the world. From handspun and handwoven garments; to ceremonial and religious carvings; to wooden, woven, leather, and ceramic vessels for kitchen use; art and handmade artifacts have long been an integral part of daily life for people in traditional cultures. To encourage public appreciation of these unique "products," Folk Art International has again assembled a large and carefully chosen selection of utilitarian "decorative objects" from Europe, Asia, Africa, Oceania, and the Americas.

Among the unusual items featured at this year's show will be:

- Whimsical and colorful handcarved wooden puppets from the Bambara tribe of Mali
- Handmade dolls from Bolivia dressed in traditional costumes of handwoven woolens—complete with shepherds' staffs, babes in arms, and pottery water jugs.
- Figuratively-carved wooden heddle pulleys used by the itinerant weavers of West Africa
- Ceremonial Tibetan drums dating from the 16th Century
- Toys galore—for young and old alike—including Chinese bobbing headed plaster dolls and elaborately costumed hand-puppets, colorful wooden animals from Mexico, whimsical wooden puzzles from Europe and the U.S., dancing limberjacks from Appalachia, plus jumping jacks, Noah's Arks, mystery boxes, and many other playful surprises.
- Wooden netsukes from 18th Century Japan—subtle and intricate sculptures in miniature.
- Traditional garments from the world over that make perfect complements to today's fashions—including silk and cotton kimonos, peasant shawls from Turkey, nubby handwoven shirts from the Dogon people of Mali, Shipibo Indian cushmas from the Peruvian Amazon, cowrie-ornamented wraps from the tribes of Nagaland, plus ikat-woven belts, scarves and shawls from Guatemala, Mexico and Indonesia.
- Ceramic spotted horses and llamitas from Peru
- Ceremonial and dance masks from Nepal, Indonesia, West Africa and Mexico
- Jewelry and body ornaments both old and new—including European and African amber necklaces; handwrought Mexican silver; collars and twisted strands of old Venetian glass beads from Nagaland; a Ladakhi perka headdress of lambskin and turquoise; ancient faience beads from the Djenne excavations in Mali, plus a sumptuous array of moderately-priced earrings, bracelets, and beaded necklaces
- Christmas ornaments, decorations, and candle holders from around the world.

Both the serious collector seeking one-of-a-kind folk art objects, and the Christmas shopper looking for unusual items will find much to choose from. Purchases will also help to support the organization's educational objectives.

Folk Art International's Exhibition and Sale will be open daily from November 17 through December 24, Thanksgiving excluded. Hours 10am–8pm Tuesdays–Saturdays; 10am–6pm Sundays, Mondays. Admission is free. For additional information telephone 441-6100. After Nov. 21 673-4094.
